Desperado Wrap, posted here on CopperKnob, is attributed to Nonie and Harry Ramos (no date given). It is a lovely gentle, slow, romantic partner dance. However, ladies sometimes have difficulty executing the pirouette and arm movements while the gentleman does a simple vine, especially with slightly faster-paced music. This variation offers a simpler version, equally gentle, without the pirouette. Becoming comfortable with this variation, partners can move on to mastering the movements of the original dance. Partners can even enjoy the additional pleasure of mixing the movements of this and the original.

As evidenced by the extended list of music, this dance goes well with a number of songs.

Lady's and Gentleman's footwork is identical.

Start with both partners facing outside line of dance (OLOD) in tandem position, gentleman behind lady, holding lady's upraised hands over her shoulders.
